Night Sessions Ordered To Speed Lease-Lend Question To Decision

TWO IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS UP

A. E. F., Convoy Problems To Be Settled Soon; Clark's Suggestion Argued

USE OF FUNDS PLAYED

Senator Wheeler Predicts Vote Early Next Week; Filibuster Out

WASHINGTON, March 7—President Roosevelt today warned the senate that every day of delay in enactment of the lease-lend bill means another delay in deliveries of aid to embattled Britain.

WASHINGTON, March 7—The senate today neared crucial test votes on amendments to the lease-lend bill banning dispatch of a second A.E.F. to Europe as a part of America's program of aiding Britain to resist the legions of Nazi Germany.

Confident that they can beat down drastic proposals, administration leaders urged early votes and ordered night sessions until a final vote is reached on the bill.

The first and most vital test vote was slated on an amendment by Sen. Clark (D) Mo., which prohibits use of public funds to send men beyond limits of the Western Hemisphere. U. S. possessions, or areas where America has special treaty rights.

"I don't think it will be adopted," the Missourian said, "but the amendment will put a lot of four flushers on the spot. They can't deny that my amendment is constitutional, and that is the excuse they've been offering to beat down other amendments saying we shouldn't send our men into this war."

Fight To Be Furious

Despite action of senate leaders capitulating to sentiment for the Ellender amendment by agreeing to a compromise, the furious battle over both the question of sending men to Europe and using the navy to convoy ships continued unabated.

The senate had before it the modified amendment of Sen. Ellender (D) La., which says that nothing in the bill shall be construed to change existing law relating to use of land and naval forces, except insofar as the lease-lend bill authorizes repair of British ships and other similar aid.

It also had before it the amendment of Sen. O'Mahoney (D) Wyo., as modified by his acceptance of the heart of the amendment of Sen. Maloney (D) Conn. This amendment prohibits transporting of lease-lend goods by armed forces into combat zones declared by the President under the Neutrality Act.

Magellan Straits Fight Is Reported By Chileans

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 7—Chilean military authorities today eagerly awaited a report from a Chilean coast guard vessel regarding advice that British warships and German commerce raiders had fought a running sea battle in the Straits of Magellan at the southernmost tip of South America.

Unconfirmed rumors indicated the British ships may have destroyed a Nazi raider.

Some Chilean circles expressed doubt that the reported battle had occurred. They pointed out a heavy thunderstorm had raged in the straits Wednesday, and that this may have deceived a light-house keeper at the entrance to the straits, who reported hearing the roar of gunfire.

Another possibility was that an Argentine warship may have been carrying out target practice, authorities said.

Nevertheless, Chilean defense authorities dispatched a vessel to the scene to find out whether there had been a battle.

WORKMAN FALLS FROM FACTORY ROOF TO DEATH

Hugh L. Reedy Jr., 31, a resident of Columbus and a cousin of Fred Egan, South Scioto Street, was injured fatally Thursday when he plunged through a skylight and fell 37 feet to a concrete floor when working at the Jaeger Machine Co., Columbus.

Reedy, a resident of 606 South Twenty-second Street, was the father of two children, a daughter, Julia Ann, being born Monday night. Mrs. Reedy, a patient in St. Ann's Hospital, Columbus, has not been informed of the tragedy.

Fellow workers reported that Reedy was cleaning a fan on the roof when he fell Thursday afternoon. He was taken to White Cross Hospital, where he died a victim of a skull fracture.

He was a graduate of Columbus South High and attended Ohio State University two years.

Besides his widow and infant daughter, he is survived by another child, Hugh, 4; his father; two brothers and several aunts and uncles, who reside in the Adelphi-Laurelville community.

U. S. OPENS WAY TO SEND SHIPS

Details Of Transfer Have Been Completed; Action May Be Immediate

AID BILL VOTE AWAITED

Trade Hinted; Measure Gives President Enough Power To Juggle Fleet

WASHINGTON, March 7—A number of American warships, including destroyers and torpedo boats, will be turned over to Great Britain after the lease-lend bill is passed, it was learned today.

Details of the transfer have not yet been completed but there is a possibility that the American warships may be "exchanged" for a British battleship or two.

The Navy Department has moved to obtain congressional authorization for such a "swap" if President Roosevelt should wish to make it.

Legislation has been introduced in the house of representatives authorizing the Navy to replace old warships with whatever type of combat vessel the President considers essential for American defense purposes.

Under existing law, the Navy can only replace battleships with battleships or destroyers with destroyers.

If the new authorization is granted, the Navy will have the power to replace destroyers with an equal tonnage of any other category of warships. Thus, the Navy could "exchange" about twenty 1,500-ton destroyers for a 30,000-ton British battleship of the Barham class.

It is possible that the destroyer-type vessels turned over to the British may be classified as auxiliary ships rather than destroyers, and they may include mine layers and fleet tugs.

Power Granted

Under the lease-lend bill, President Roosevelt will have the power "to sell, transfer, exchange, lend or otherwise dispose" of warships or any other American defense article to the British.

Great Britain already has made known to this government its pressing need for additional destroyers and there is reason to believe the British will make an urgent appeal for these vessels once the lease-lend bill is passed.

The question of asking the British to "exchange" a battleship or two for American destroyers will, it was indicated, depend on the situation in the Far East. If that situation deteriorates and the Navy Department considers it advisable to strengthen the American fleet in the Pacific, President Roosevelt might ask for the "loan" of a couple of British battleships, informed quarters said.

In "exchange" for the battleships, the President might offer the British the "loan" of an equivalent tonnage of destroyers or "auxiliary" vessels.

PURSUIT PLANE FALL FATAL TO BUFFALO AIRMAN

HONOLULU, March 7—An army board of inquiry today was investigating the crash of a pursuit plane near Haleiwa Beach which brought death to Lieut. Brewster Ward, 25, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Ward was on a routine exercise when his ship suddenly fell to earth.

The young pilot is survived by his widow, Barbara Ward, and an infant son, Brewster, Jr., living in Honolulu.

PROBATE JUDGE NAMED IN HUGE DAMAGE ACTION

COLUMBUS, March 7—Charging him with "conduct unbecoming to a judge of a court of justice," Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus attorney, today sued Franklin Probate Judge C. P. McClelland for $750,000 damages.

Judge McClelland made a finding of $11,026 against Mrs. Dickinson in funds of a guardianship.

In her damage suit, Mrs. Dickinson charged that, although Ohio law gives a guardian two years to file an accounting, she was called to account five months before the expiration of this period.

She further charged that a hearing before Judge McClelland December 13 had as its sole purpose "to hold this plaintiff up to public scorn." It was at this hearing that she admitted taking the $11,000 for personal use.

Meanwhile, the district appellate court had under advisement Mrs. Dickinson's suit to compel Judge McClelland to accept her motion for final fees and accounting in the guardianship.

Common pleas judges of Franklin County are scheduled to hear disbarment proceedings against the woman attorney next week.

Mrs. Dickinson, in her damage suit, also blamed Judge McClelland for the disbarment proceedings and termed his conduct "malicious, unwarranted, unethical, illegal, undignified and deceitful."

STRIKES AT END IN TWO CITIES; DAYTON GOES ON

By International News Service
Settlement of strikes in Cleveland and Akron today gave the Ohio labor picture a rosier hue, but peace was not in sight at Dayton where a strike of AFL building tradesmen tied up a huge national defense project at Wright Field.

DAYTON—400 AFL workers idle for third day because they refused to work beside CIO electricians on Wright Field construction projects. No settlement in sight.

CINCINNATI — Two-third of city's public schools closed by strike of building engineers (AFL) for wage increases. Workmen refused to return to jobs pending settlement of grievances.

CLEVELAND — Concessions made to machinists' union bring end of seven weeks strike of 800 employees of Apex Electrical Co. work to be resumed Monday.

AKRON — Gasoline "famine" terminated when truck drivers and filling station owners reach agreement calling for wage increases.

BOSTON, March 7—Signing of a two-year agreement with the American Woolen Mills providing for a 10 percent wage increase for 28,000 employees was hailed today by the Textile Workers Union of America, a CIO affiliate, as the first step toward raising the wages of 160,000 woolen and worsted workers in the United States.

"The union is negotiating with other companies and announcements are expected shortly," said a union statement.

USER OF PHONE NOT INFORMED OF ITS MOVING

CLEVELAND, March 7—Mrs. Lena Jones doesn't question the right of the telephone company to remove any of its pay-station booths, but she resents a booth being removed while she is in it.

That was the basis of the suit in which Mrs. Jones today is seeking $10,000 damages from the Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

Mrs. Jones claims that on March 9, 1939, two service men entered a drug store while she was using the phone. Without bothering to look inside, she charges, they tore the booth away from its moorings, turned it roughly on its side and carted it away.

Mrs. Jones said she rattled around inside, her screams unheard. She said she finally managed to open the door and tumble out, but not before she sustained injuries.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, March 7—Because he first had to milk 26 cows on his widowed mother's farm and missed a train that was to have taken him off for induction into the Army, draft board officials today deferred a farm boy who had not filed an exemption claim.

NAVAL, MARINE UNITS TO SHARE APPROPRIATIONS

WASHINGTON, March 7—The Senate Naval Affairs Committee today approved a bill authorizing a $100,802,830 navy and marine corps expansion program, amid bitter charges that the navy is failing to develop the Great Lakes area and a disclosure that the U. S. marines would organize parachute troops.

The bill, which had been approved by the house, was increased to provide for three new projects. They were:

1—A $15,000,000 marine base in North Carolina, 40 miles from Wilmington between the Neuse and the New Rivers on the coast.

2—A $2,500,000 navy ammunition depot between San Diego and Los Angeles, Calif.

3—Purchase of $500,000 worth of land at Annapolis Academy for additional athletic field.

ANOTHER LABOR DISPUTE HALTS DEFENSE ORDER

DETROIT, March 7—The UAW-CIO today called a strike of 500 men at the Federal Motor Truck Co., which has a $5,000,000 defense truck order. The union demands wage increases and a preferential shop.

Edward M. Owen, state labor board conciliator, said the strike had been called despite the labor board ruling that since defense contracts were involved a 30-day cooling off period was required. The strike notice was filed February 25, Owen said.

The company employees immediately established a picket line around the plant.

FARM BOY MILKS 26 COWS, AND MISSES JOINING ARMY

NEW PHILADELPHIA, March 7—Because he first had to milk 26 cows on his widowed mother's farm and missed a train that was to have taken him off for induction into the Army, draft board officials today deferred a farm boy who had not filed an exemption claim.

"We don't want to get the government into a lawsuit," said Walter Williams, clerk of the board.

NAVAL, MARINE UNITS TO SHARE APPROPRIATIONS

WASHINGTON, March 7—The Senate Naval Affairs Committee today approved a bill authorizing a $100,802,830 navy and marine corps expansion program, amid bitter charges that the navy is failing to develop the Great Lakes area and a disclosure that the U. S. marines would organize parachute troops.

The bill, which had been approved by the house, was increased to provide for three new projects. They were:

1—A $15,000,000 marine base in North Carolina, 40 miles from Wilmington between the Neuse and the New Rivers on the coast.

2—A $2,500,000 navy ammunition depot between San Diego and Los Angeles, Calif.

3—Purchase of $500,000 worth of land at Annapolis Academy for additional athletic field.

ANOTHER LABOR DISPUTE HALTS DEFENSE ORDER

DETROIT, March 7—The UAW-CIO today called a strike of 500 men at the Federal Motor Truck Co., which has a $5,000,000 defense truck order. The union demands wage increases and a preferential shop.

Edward M. Owen, state labor board conciliator, said the strike had been called despite the labor board ruling that since defense contracts were involved a 30-day cooling off period was required. The strike notice was filed February 25, Owen said.

The company employees immediately established a picket line around the plant.

SHIP IN DISTRESS

PHILADELPHIA, March 7—U. S. coast guard headquarters announced today that the cutter Mohawk was speeding to the assistance of the 6,000-ton Norwegian freighter Olafberg which grounded on Fenwick Island Shoals near Ocean City, Md., early this morning.

E. C. Ebert Discusses Elks Lodge Program; Other Business Handled

MANY DATES ARE SET

Track Meet And Oratorical Events To Be Staged This Spring

County school participation in an essay contest on "What Uncle Sam Means to Me," sponsored by the Circleville Elks Lodge under the direction of E. C. Ebert, chairman of the lodge's Americanism committee, was guaranteed Thursday by county school superintendents at their meeting in Superintendent George McDowell's office.

Chairman Ebert, who appeared before the group, outlined the rules of the contest to the superintendents and asked their cooperation in sponsoring it in their individual schools. Superintendent McDowell said Friday that rules of the contest would be mailed to county schools soon.

Prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be given to the first three winners, with pupils in both city and county invited to participate. Details of the contest have not yet been completed.

Regional Scout Executive O. B. Evenson, Cincinnati, accompanied by local scouters, discussed with the superintendents the possibility of promoting the scouting program through the rural schools. Mr. Evenson told the group that there were over 1,000 boys in Pickaway County of eligible scouting age, who might be organized into troops and neighborhood patrols. The scouters advanced the idea that the rural scouting program could run parallel to 4-H Club and F. F. A. activity. At the present there are about 150 scouts in the county.

Test Dates Fixed

Superintendents, Thursday, set dates for administering state tests. The senior test will be conducted March 29 and eighth grade test, April 18. No date was fixed for conducting elimination tests.

A county track meet will be held this year, superintendents decided, the date being either May 9 or 10. The location was not announced. The oratorical contest will be held April 18 at the Perry Township school, with Superintendent Leslie Canup in charge of the event.

Pupils in county schools will be given an opportunity to see the movie "Land of Liberty" at the Cliftona Theatre Wednesday afternoon, all pupils who wish to see the picture being excused from classes. City classes will be dismissed Thursday afternoon at 2:45 to give pupils an opportunity to see the show.

At a dinner meeting Thursday night in Betz' Restaurant, school superintendents heard P. O. Wagner, state psychologist, discuss "Special Education."

65,000 WHO HAVE FLED HOMES LIVE IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, March 7—Sixty-five thousand European refugees—half the total in the United States—live in New York City, refugee-aid officials disclosed today.

During the last three years, 10,000 have been prevailed to move into the interior where the Americanization process is speeded up, the National Refugee Service reported.

ANOTHER VACATION DAY ENJOYED IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, March 7—With the rejection by the A. F. of L. Unionists of an arbitration proposal, children in two-thirds of Cincinnati's 87 public schools today enjoyed the second day of a vacation enforced by the strike of operating engineers.

Temperatures skidded to as low as 50 and 60 degrees in the classrooms as the engineers, who are demanding "wages more in line with those paid in private industry," left their boilers untended. Union spokesmen rejected a proposal by Supt. C. V. Courter to end the strike and then arbitrate alleged grievances.

It was estimated that the strike would cost the city $27,000 daily in teachers' salaries alone.

Capacity Audience Sees Junior Class Members In Play Presentation

By Lyall Cryder

A capacity audience, deeply attentive from first to last, saw the characters of Louisa M. Alcott's novel, "Little Women," beloved of each generation since Civil War times, come to life Thursday on the stage of the Circleville High School auditorium. With deep understanding and delightful aplomb, the cast of members of the Junior class portrayed the characters so naturally that the usual distractions of a period play were unnoticed.

The hoop-skirted daughters of the March family, in the typical living room of the mid-Victorian era, showed the usual sisterly tendencies to agreements and disagreements due to widely dissimilar characters. Faithfully portrayed, Marvne Hennessy really seemed the "man of the family" in her interpretation of 'Jo March', the tomboy; the 'Meg' of Mary Lou Kochheiser was all that could be desired in loving helpfulness as the eldest sister of the group; 'Amy' (Eleanor Thomas) was the ambitious one not only in the use of words which she did not understand, but in her artistic endeavors and her final acquisition of 'Laurie', the grandson of the wealthy neighbor, as her husband. Extremely natural in his part of Laurie, William Burget made the affectionate friend of the girls very pleasing.

'Beth' (Marcella Cunningham), the frail daughter of the family, was quite a character in the play, though appearing only in the first and second acts, showing a real cleverness in the restraint of the part.

The 'Marmee' of Lillian Thompson and the 'Mr. March' of Glenn Barnhart were complementing parts played with understanding. Harry Clifton handled the part of 'John Brooke' in a manly fashion and more than came to the front as the husband of the lovely 'Meg.' 'Aunt March' (Barbara Caskey) furnished many laughs with her unannounced appearances and acid attempts to regulate the lives of the members of the March family.

Stewart Martin as Professor Bhaer by sheer good acting put over the part of the shy distinguished scholar with the broken English which so easily might have been made ridiculous.

For the Friday performance of the same play, the part of 'Jo' will be taken by Maxine Betts while Margaret Boggs will portray the opinionated 'Aunt March'. The different interpretations will add interest for the many who are planning to see the play for the second time.

Much credit is due Samuel R. Johnson, director, for the careful coaching evidenced in the work of the cast in the John Ravid arrangement.

Clark Martin served as stage manager with Jack Crawford, David Betz and Harold Weaver as his crew. Emma Louise Howard as property mistress was assisted by Robert Goeller, Helen Hoffman and Ruth Noggle. The costume assistants were Marvne Crosby, Eleanor Weaver and Eleanor Wiggins. Letitia Gamble and Marjorie Trimmer were bookholders. The business staff included Dorothy Cook as manager, Robert Moon, Don Valentine, Betty Moeller, Marvlyn Campbell, Wanda Grabill and Margaret Grose.

The staff of usherettes was comprised of Eileen Mogan, Ruth Fausnaugh, Rosemary Huffer, Jean Imler, Evelyn Henn, Martha Kilian, Harriet Stapleton and Georgia Myers.

Music was furnished for the production by the High School orchestra under the direction of Professor C. F. Zaenglein, with Dorothy Glenn, accordionist, playing two excellent solos.

Many individuals of Circleville assisted with various properties in furnishing the authentic setting for the play, arranged by Hildeburn Martin.

MANY MILES OF ROADS PAINTED BY STATE STAFF

To throw additional safeguards around school children, pedestrians and drivers of motor vehicles, workmen in Division Six of the Ohio Highway Department have completed centerlining 951.89 miles of roads.

Pickaway County work included: Routes centralized, U. S. 22, 23 and State 3, 55, 104, 159, 180, 188, 277, 316 and 762.

Miles centralized, 122.6.
Railroad crossings painted, 7.
School zones painted, schools facing highways, 6.

Locations where sight distance is less than 600 feet, painted with yellow line for no-passing zones, 310.

Other counties in the Division are Delaware, Fayette, Franklin, Madison, Marion, Morrow and Union.

Our Bill Bowers, the big bass horn player in the army band down at Camp Shelby, has recently received another promotion. Hadn't been there only a short while until he was made a first class private and now another step-up to extra First Class private and wears a blue stripe insignia on the coat sleeve showing his rank. Now has a certain "work period" in the library. He is not there, we are guessing, wholly for the fun of it, and if there are any good jobs hanging loose from post commander on down, he's ready for them.

Lately we have been making inquiry about the first appearing robin but with no response from anyone until Thursday the 6th, when Ed Schlegel came down town from Old Mill Race Hollow territory, with red birds and squirrels there all winter, to tell us that both he and Mrs. Schlegel had just seen two pairs of perfectly alive fine robins down the creek bank south of their home. Harry Litten told us the same evening that there were a number of them there amounting to a flock and that these were the first he had seen this spring. So the robins are here. The martins will be along in about a month. A. B. and Mrs. Cooper with their housing room and feed are well prepared to care for them upon their arrival. The crows which hold a sort of Spring Eisteddfod in a wooded grove up near Madison school have not yet put in their appearance.

Going back to our in-camp soldier boys, we'll find out about more of them of the village and community. Others than Bowers are Byron Gulick and Jeffie Sturgell of the village, who, if we are not wrong, are in the same company with Gulick a mechanic and employed in a garage.

TWO IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS UP

not only dispose of these amendments but also others," said Majority Leader Barkley.
Another senate leader, who declined to permit use of his name, said "we are going to keep 'em in night sessions until they let us pass this bill."
Barkley assailed both the Clark and O'Mahoney amendments, and predicted acceptance of the Ellender amendment by a two to one vote.

To Show Skeptics

"We agreed to the compromise on the Ellender amendment because we thought it would satisfy those who have any fears and to show we are willing to go as far as possible in these matters without destroying the bill," he said.
Senate leaders, it is known, have under consideration other modifying amendments designed to meet charges that the measure paves the way to war and permits depletion of the navy.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, offered to accept an amendment limiting the President's power to transfer war goods to "transfer of title." This, he said, would make clear there is no power in the bill to convey or deliver war goods to England.

He declared that the compromise Ellender amendment, which was assailed by foes of the bill as meaningless, actually is important.

"It says that whatever powers the President has under the constitution, nothing in the bill shall disturb them," George explained.

"We want to say it for the purpose of assuring the people, for the purpose of supporting what the President has said since the bill was introduced—that he does not intend to convey goods—and for the purpose of saying we do not want to enter the war."

Johnson Offers Two

Sen. Johnson, Cal., ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, offered two drastic amendments, designed to prohibit both conveying of ships and sending of men to foreign wars. He was expected to make an appeal to the senate to stay out of war.

O'Mahoney, asserting that his amendment has "a pretty good chance," declared "we ought to say frankly to the American people whether or not we expect to enter the war."

Opposition leaders said that all talk of a filibuster has been dissipated. Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., said he didn't think that "there is any doubt but that we will vote early next week."

More than 30 amendments, however, remained to be acted on before a final roll call vote is ordered.

ZEALOUS CHICAGO FIREMEN EXPERIENCE ROSY CHEEKS

CHICAGO, March 7.—The bright red sides of Chicago's firemen were no redder today than the cheeks of some of the city's firemen.

More than 20 firemen from three companies were battling last night to extinguish six burning box cars in the yards of the North Western Railroad when Arthur H. Andersen, fire marshal for the railroad, stopped them.

"Don't put out the fire, boys," he said. "These box cars are old and we're burning them on purpose."

CAR RIDERS FINED

Two youths were fined $5 and costs each by Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges late Thursday for riding cars on the Norfolk and Western Railway, and committed to County Jail for failure to make payment. The youths were Martin L. Woodrow, Circleville, and John Regan, Pittsburgh, Penn. The arrests were made by N. and W. Detective G. C. Hunter.

TWO IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS UP

not only dispose of these amendments but also others," said Majority Leader Barkley.

Another senate leader, who declined to permit use of his name, said "we are going to keep 'em in night sessions until they let us pass this bill."

Barkley assailed both the Clark and O'Mahoney amendments, and predicted acceptance of the Ellender amendment by a two to one vote.

To Show Skeptics

"We agreed to the compromise on the Ellender amendment because we thought it would satisfy those who have any fears and to show we are willing to go as far as possible in these matters without destroying the bill," he said.

Senate leaders, it is known, have under consideration other modifying amendments designed to meet charges that the measure paves the way to war and permits depletion of the navy.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, offered to accept an amendment limiting the President's power to transfer war goods to "transfer of title." This, he said, would make clear there is no power in the bill to convey or deliver war goods to England.

He declared that the compromise Ellender amendment, which was assailed by foes of the bill as meaningless, actually is important.

"It says that whatever powers the President has under the constitution, nothing in the bill shall disturb them," George explained.

"We want to say it for the purpose of assuring the people, for the purpose of supporting what the President has said since the bill was introduced—that he does not intend to convey goods—and for the purpose of saying we do not want to enter the war."

Johnson Offers Two

Sen. Johnson, Cal., ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, offered two drastic amendments, designed to prohibit both conveying of ships and sending of men to foreign wars. He was expected to make an appeal to the senate to stay out of war.

O'Mahoney, asserting that his amendment has "a pretty good chance," declared "we ought to say frankly to the American people whether or not we expect to enter the war."

Opposition leaders said that all talk of a filibuster has been dissipated. Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., said he didn't think that "there is any doubt but that we will vote early next week."

More than 30 amendments, however, remained to be acted on before a final roll call vote is ordered.

ZEALOUS CHICAGO FIREMEN EXPERIENCE ROSY CHECKS

CHICAGO, March 7.—The bright red sides of Chicago's fire-wagons were no redder today than the cheeks of some of the city's firemen.

More than 20 firemen from three companies were battling last night to extinguish six burning box cars in the yards of the North Western Railroad when Arthur H. Ankersen, fire marshal for the railroad, stopped them.

"Don't put out the fire, boys," he said. "These box cars are old and we're burning them on purpose."

CAR RIDERS FINED

Two youths were fined $5 and costs each by Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges late Thursday for riding cars on the Norfolk and Western Railway, and committed to County Jail for failure to make payment. The youths were Martin L. Woodrow, Circleville, and John Regan, Pittsburgh, Penn.

The arrests were made by N. and W. Detective G. C. Hunter.

OPEN LETTERS

TO AAA OFFICERS

SIRS: Your county and community committeemen have invited members of the local Chamber of Commerce to be your guests at a joint dinner meeting at the St.
Philip's Parish House next Tuesday evening. The meeting will bring AAA officials and Chamber members together for the first time, although the idea of a joint merchant-farmer session is not entirely new, since it first became popular with last year's Corn and Soybean Show. In the last year, however, such meetings, between farmers and merchants, have tended to create a mutual interest in the other's business and awaken both farmers and merchants to the dependency of one or the other. The Conservation Association has played an active part in farm planning in the county, with more than 70 percent of the county's farms signed under the program last year. Officials expect this year to see similar participation in the program.
Whether one agrees with the government's farm policy or not it cannot be denied that the program has attracted a majority of the farmers of the community and dare
not be ignored. Tuesday night's meeting, however, is not one intended to sell any one on the AAA program, but it is intended to sell everyone on the benefits of farmer-merchant cooperation.

TO LIBRARY OFFICIALS

FOLK: Many in Circleville and Pick-away County were surprised to learn that one out of every three persons uses
the library. According to your report, presented to library trustees at their annual meeting last Friday night, thirty-four percent of the total population of the county is registered as active book borrowers.
When one considers that in many cases
one card supplies books for several members of the family, a still larger percentage would no doubt be justified. Your total circulation last year was something over 154,600 volumes, about three times the circulation three years ago. Your expenditures last year ran $9,330. The largest percentage of the library cost is furnished by intangible tax revenue, $8,350 of it. The rest comes from state aid and from local sources. The county system cost $3,185 and served 18 county schools, villages and the Orient State

WORLD AT A GLANCE

JESSE JONES, commerce secretary (also federal loan administrator and export-import bank director), is the hardest high official in Washington just now to extract an interview from.
To be sure, President Roosevelt has said he wasn't referring to Jesse especially when he described such remarks as that "we're nearly
in the war" as mere "mouthing
of words that don't mean anything." Nevertheless, Jesse was the last individual who had just mouthed them, as a witness
before the house of representatives' banking committee, before F. D. R. expressed himself on the subject.

Washington's popular verdict is that, while maybe he didn't refer to his commerce secretary ESPE-CIALLY, he certainly must have intended to include him.
Plenty of isolationist representatives and senators made remarks substantially the same as Jesse's, in the course of congressional debate relative to the lease-lend plan. They undoubtedly were prepared to be presidentially characterized as mere "meaningless mouthers." It struck listeners-in,
however, as rather a different thing to have the chief executive
so designate one of his own cabinet members.

As applied to the isolationist
lawmakers, it was an observation
which the capital was inclined to interpret as simply an answer to their anti-administrative utterances.

REBUKE FROM THE BOSS?

In Jesse's case it sounded to most hearers like a rebuke from the boss to an indiscreet subordinate—and a damned scorching one.
Jesse evidently knew he'd committed something awful the minute he'd said what he did to the banking committee, for he hastily
told the committee's stenographer
to omit it from his notes, so it
didn't go into the official record.
Seemingly, it didn't occur to
him, though, to warn newspaper
reporters at the hearing not to quote him. Or, perhaps, as a newspaper publisher himself, he realized
that they'd quote him, any-
way. They did, too, and their editors played his testimony up promi-nently.

Jesse attempted no comment
following his spanking—for a
spanking is what everybody thinks
it was, even if the president did
explain that the spanks were not
aimed at his stern ESPECIALLY.
Indeed, there wasn't much comment he could have indulged in
profitably.

He simply has closed up tight-
er than a clam, which is unfortunate from a reportorial stand-
point, for hitherto he's been a first-
rate news source, and, probably
due to his personal journalistic
connection, an unusually intelligent one.

Washington's correspondents
would like to know now what
F. D. R.'s opinion of a talk Mrs.

F. D. R. made a few days ago before Hunter college's alumnae,
faculty and students.

The first lady's address hasn't
been published—not in the capi-
tal's press, at any rate.

FIRST LADY'S VIEW

However, it has appeared in
print that, answering questions
from her collegiate audience, she
stated that, while opposing war,
there are "some things worth dying for."

That, of course, wasn't the same
thing as saying that "we're
nearly IN the war," as Jesse
Jones put it.

Still, query the correspondents,
didn't it verge on it?
Nobody has had the nerve to
put this question up to the White House directly; it would be pretty
sassy. But there's a lot of wondering about it.

What Mrs. Roosevelt said appeared in the same issues of the
same newspapers as the story of President Roosevelt's jab at
"meaningless mouthings." It's natural that there's considerable
paralleling of the two yarns.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was OPPOSED to war. Well, Jesse
Jones didn't say he was in favor
of it. All he said was that "we're nearly IN it." Neither did he say
that there are "some things worth
dying for." That was stronger
than anything he said.

But Jesse got spanked. There's no news that Mrs. F. D. R. was
even reprimanded.

Farm and the Children's Home. Expenditures at the main library ran $6,000. In the past your department has been criticized for its alleged unnecessary expenditures and city officials pointed to the library as the first place to cut city expenses. Your report should be sufficient to convince them that revenue for any institution which serves so many should be carefully considered before drastic cuts
are made.

TO DR. J. P. GARDNER

SIR: An event happened in your life the other evening that should make you proud for the rest of your days. The ceremony of Logan Elm Lodge of Masons in which you made your third son a Master Mason has not been duplicated many times
in Ohio, and probably never before in this community. It can always be remembered by you and your friends as a highlight
in your fraternal life and in the annals of Logan Elm Lodge which has a long and brilliant history. Congratulations go to you and to your sons, J. Porter Jr., Philip and Richard, all of whom have received their Master Mason degrees from your hand. I know that you feel proud because of this event, and I know that your Kingston friends and acquaintances everywhere share your joy.

CIRCUITEER.

TO AN OLD AGE PENSIONER

SIR: I don't know who you are, but a story about you came from Tom McCaw, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged, the other day saying that you had objected to a raise in your monthly benefit payment. He quoted your letter
as reading "I wish you would take off that increase you gave me; I've been getting along all right on what I have been getting." Citizens of Pickaway County do not mind showing a little charity to a person like you, who has shown a lot of unselfishness to all of us.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL DEBATERS

BOYS: It was not so long ago that this column congratulated you for doing
a splendid job during the present school year. Here's another note praising you for winning 31 out of 42 contests in the toughest competition available. The fact that you finished second in the Ohio
Speech League event at Marysville last week is another feather in your cap, because you faced some splendid debaters in winning your high rating.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HEALTH LEAGUE

ORGANIZATION: Your association
made some definite plans the other night for conduct of your activities next year, and I feel certain that everything will go well in your next campaign. The affairs of the League will be administered
with only a few changes, and I am sure that George D. McDowell, the new president, will prove to be an excellent leader.
Persons who have had considerable experience in health seal sale work will be doing their share next year. The success of the sale this year was due largely to a program that was outlined before the campaign started. A similarly-conducted effort next winter will get similar results.

banking committee, for he hastily
told the committee's stenographer
to omit it from his notes, so it
didn't go into the official record.
Seemingly, it didn't occur to
him, though, to warn newspaper
reporters at the hearing not to
quote him. Or, perhaps, as a newspaper publisher himself, he realized
that they'd quote him, any-
way. They did, too, and their editors played his testimony up promi-nently.

Jesse attempted no comment
following his spanking—for a
spanking is what everybody thinks
it was, even if the president did
explain that the spanks were not
aimed at his stern ESPECIALLY.
Indeed, there wasn't much comment he could have indulged in
profitably.

He simply has closed up tight-
er than a clam, which is unfortunate from a reportorial stand-
point, for hitherto he's been a first-
rate news source, and, probably
due to his personal journalistic
connection, an unusually intelligent one.

Washington's correspondents
would like to know now what
F. D. R.'s opinion of a talk Mrs.

F. D. R. made a few days ago before Hunter college's alumnae,
faculty and students.

The first lady's address hasn't
been published—not in the capi-
tal's press, at any rate.

FIRST LADY'S VIEW

However, it has appeared in
print that, answering questions
from her collegiate audience, she
stated that, while opposing war,
there are "some things worth dying for."

That, of course, wasn't the same
thing as saying that "we're
nearly IN the war," as Jesse
Jones put it.

Still, query the correspondents,
didn't it verge on it?
Nobody has had the nerve to
put this question up to the White House directly; it would be pretty
sassy. But there's a lot of wonder-
ing about it.

What Mrs. Roosevelt said appeared in the same issues of the
same newspapers as the story of
President Roosevelt's jab at
"meaningless mouthings." It's
natural that there's considerable
paralleling of the two yarns.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was OPPOSED to war. Well, Jesse
Jones didn't say he was in favor
of it. All he said was that "we're
nearly IN it." Neither did he say
that there are "some things worth
dying for." That was stronger
than anything he said.

But Jesse got spanked. There's
no news that Mrs. F. D. R. was
even reprimanded.

Anti-Venom for Snake Bites

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
● The Instituto Butantan in Sao Paulo, Brazil, is, I believe, unique in the world.

Its purpose is the scientific study of poisonous snakes and other poisonous animals—toads,
tarantulas and centipedes—and
the manufacture of anti-venom to prevent epidemic accidents.

Poisonous snakes are sent there from all over South America—in fact, from all over the world. I

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest
only, and then only through his column.

saw a fellow denizen of the United States there—a beautiful, black,
velvety looking stranger from Arizona. I was told, which had puzzled the immunity experts of our laboratories to find the nature of its venom, so they sent it to Brazil,
where with true good-neighborli-
ness they are trying to manufacture an anti-venom to fit its particular style of anti-social activity.

Extracting Venom

My letter of introduction operated well, and I was most courteously received and shown around by Senor J. Talarico, the director.
Senor Talarico's offhand familiarity with reptiles can hardly fail to arouse emotions of astonishment and admiration. I saw Senor Talarico handling not one,
but dozens of snakes, all at the same time. Senor Talarico has been bitten hundreds of times in his seven years' experience.
But to see Senor Talarico extract the venom from a rattler is a sight of scientific wonder and delight. He gets the snake just back of the head. This causes him to open his mouth automatically
and show the two upper fangs,
sharp as needles. Senor Talarico bares these with his steel instrument, stripping the gums back, so we can all get a good view of the show. Then he squeezes the poison glands just behind the jaws,
and down the fangs run three or four drops of murky, yellow, opalescent liquid.

Rattlesnake Bites Fatal

One millimeter, Senor Talarico
explains, injected into the vein
will kill a man within fifteen minutes. There have been some controversies I have heard as to whether rattlesnake venom kills

but there seems no doubt, on the basis of the Butantan Institute experience that it can and does in many cases. Its effectiveness depends upon how much venom actually gets in the blood stream
rather than the tissues, the age of the serpent—the old and young
are not so venomous—and whether the serpent has struck recently before. It takes about fifteen days for the venom to reform in the glands.

The institute maintains a large farmyard full of animals for venom manufacture and in the laboratories research is going on all the time, and anti-venom sera sent out to all parts of Brazil and all nations.

Lenten Reducing Diet

Hotel Huntington, Pasadena,
California

Third Day

No seasoning on anything.
Either coffee or tea (no sugar
or cream) with every meal.

fee.

Lunch: Minute steak, stewed tomatoes.

Dinner: Minute steak, stewed tomatoes, plain spinach, lettuce
and tomato salad.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. M. S.: "Is it necessary to eat a quarter of a pound of raw liver a day for anemia, and will apricots take the place of the raw liver for this disease?"

Answer—The correct amount of liver to eat for pernicious anemia is one-half pound a day. Apricots have nothing to do with the case. I don't know where you could have picked up this piece of misinformation. Apricots don't take the place of liver and have no effect on anemia. If liver itself is distasteful it can be replaced with liver extract, which can be taken
in capsule form and does not,
therefore, become as monotonous
as a diet.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents.
For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr.

The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reduc-

"Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

A STRANGE thing was happening to Eve, as she stood there in Bill's arms kissing him.

With her eyes closed to shut out
the mountain setting, she could easily imagine herself in the arms
of Carey Watts, imagine Carey kissing her instead of Bill. The country club setting again, with the moonlight turning the whole
wide world into a place of silver,
and the perfume of rambler roses filling the air; and Carey holding her close, whispering into her ear:
"Darling—darling—until death do us part!"

She made herself reopen her eyes.

And realizing where she was,
whose arms were about her, whose lips were upon her own, she pulled away.

She looked at Bill, touched her disheveled hair, and smiled.

"Don't look so distressed," she said.

"You aren't—angry?" Bill asked.

"No, I wanted you to kiss me, Bill, because—"

"Eve—darling!"

"—because you remind me of another man."

"Oh!" said Bill. Then trying to keep Eve from suspecting that she had done something to his ego, he said: "Is that the reason you responded as you did?"

Eve nodded. "It was."

"I see," said Bill. "But I thought
it rather nice—the kiss we shared.
It was—don't you think?"

"Yes, Bill, very nice," said Eve.
"You swept me back into a very happy period of my life. I can thank you for that anyway."

"I take it the man I remind you
of meant a great deal to you."

"He did. But that's all in the past now."

"And you are quite free to let
some other man come into your life?"

"I am. Only I don't think I'm interested. Love played me a rather sorry trick—or what I mistook to be love."

"I can imagine such a thing happening," said Bill, his thoughts
rushing back to Rita.

"And so here I am," said Eve.
"getting hold of myself in the mountains." She managed a laugh that wasn't especially mirthful and said: "At least you and I have something in common, Bill Latham."

"What is that?"

"Being jilted."

Bill stared at her.

"You mean to tell me the man
jilted you?"

"Yes, in a sense. Anyway, he changed his mind." Eve turned and began to break off great pieces of feathery fern. "But let's not talk about it any more."

"Just as you wish," said Bill.

He too, began to break off pieces
of the fern.

They worked in silence. Something like self-consciousness had taken hold of them. Anyway, each seemed to be waiting for the other
to say something.

Some of the lightness had gone out of Eve, and it annoyed her to feel that it had. It was silly of her to let a kiss upset her in such a fashion. And even sillier to pay any attention to the voice down inside
of her that was trying to convince her that she was not past falling in love again.

Bill was upset also.

The kiss had done things to his emotions. He felt an unaccustomed sense of confusion. And another thing—he didn't relish the idea of a girl kissing him, or letting him
kiss her, simply because he reminded her of a man she had known in the past. Having a girl imagine herself in another man's arms
when she was in his was certainly not very flattering.

"I think this will be enough,"
Eve said presently.

Bill straightened up and looked at her.

Standing there with a great
armful of rich green ferns, the color of which contrasted so strikingly with her titian hair, she made an unforgettable picture. For the moment Bill Latham wished that he were a painter instead of a writer. Soft yellow dress, red-gold hair, the green of the ferns—and over all
the mottled pattern of sunlight
pushing through the thick branches
of the many overhanging trees.

"Well?" Eve said.

"I was just thinking," said Bill,
his voice husky with emotion, "that you're the most beautiful girl I have ever seen!"

"Thank you," said Eve. She walked to the car, Bill behind her.
"Let's pile the ferns in the rear seat."

Eve looked at her watch.

"Heavens!" she exclaimed. "I didn't know it was that late!" She got into the car and took hold of the wheel. "We'll have to hurry,

Bill, if we call on Lars

OPEN LETTERS

TO AAA OFFICERS

SIR: Your county and community committees have invited members of the local Chamber of Commerce to be your guests at a joint dinner meeting at the St. Philip's Parish House next Tuesday evening. The meeting will bring AAA officials and Chamber members together for the first time, although the idea of a joint merchant-farmer session is not entirely new, since it first became popular with last year's Corn and Soybean Show. In the last year, however, such meetings, between farmers and merchants, have tended to create a mutual interest in the other's business and awaken both farmers and merchants to the dependency of one or the other. The Conservation Association has played an active part in farm planning in the county, with more than 70 percent of the county's farms signed under the program last year. Officials expect this year to see similar participation in the program. Whether one agrees with the government's farm policy or not it cannot be denied that the program has attracted a majority of the farmers of the community and dare not be ignored. Tuesday night's meeting, however, is not one intended to sell any one on the AAA program, but it is intended to sell everyone on the benefits of farmer-merchant cooperation.

CIRCUITEER.

FOLK: Many in Circleville and Pickaway County were surprised to learn that one out of every three persons uses the library. According to your report, presented to library trustees at their annual meeting last Friday night, thirty-four percent of the total population of the county is registered as active book borrowers. When one considers that in many cases one card supplies books for several members of the family, a still larger percentage would no doubt be justified. Your total circulation last year was something over 154,000 volumes, about three times the circulation three years ago. Your expenditures last year ran $9,330. The largest percentage of the library cost is furnished by intangible tax revenue, $8,350 of it. The rest comes from state aid and from local sources. The county system cost $3,185 and served 18 county schools, villages and the Orient State and the Children's Home. Expenditures at the main library ran $6,000. In the past your department has been criticized for its alleged unnecessary expenditures and city officials pointed to the library as the first place to cut city expenses. Your report should be sufficient to convince them that revenue for any institution which serves so many should be carefully considered before drastic cuts are made.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DR. J. P. GARDNER

SIR: An event happened in your life the other evening that should make you proud for the rest of your days. The ceremony of Logan Elm Lodge of Masons in which you made your third son a Master Mason has not been duplicated many times in Ohio, and probably never before in this community. It can always be remembered by you and your friends as a highlight in your fraternal life and in the annals of Logan Elm Lodge which has a long and brilliant history. Congratulations go to you and to your sons, J. Porter Jr., Philip and Richard, all of whom have received their Master Mason degrees from your hand. I know that you feel proud because of this event, and I know that your Kingston friends and acquaintances everywhere share your joy.

CIRCUITEER.

TO AN OLD AGE PENSIONER

SIR: I don't know who you are, but a story about you came from Tom McCaw, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged, the other day saying that you had objected to a raise in your monthly benefit payment. He quoted your letter as reading "I wish you would take off that increase you gave me; I've been getting along all right on what I have been getting." Citizens of Pickaway County do not mind showing a little charity to a person like you, who has shown a lot of unselfishness to all of us.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL DEBATERS

BOYS: It was not so long ago that this column congratulated you for doing a splendid job during the present school year. Here's another note praising you for winning 31 out of 42 contests in the toughest competition available. The fact that you finished second in the Ohio Speech League event at Marysville last week is another feather in your cap, because you faced some splendid debaters in winning your high rating.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HEALTH LEAGUE

ORGANIZATION: Your association made some definite plans the other night for conduct of your activities next year, and I feel certain that everything will go well in your next campaign. The affairs of the League will be administered with only a few changes, and I am sure that George D. McDowell, the new president, will prove to be an excellent leader. Persons who have had considerable experience in health seal sale work will be doing their share next year. The success of the sale this year was due largely to a program that was outlined before the campaign started. A similarly-conducted effort next winter will get similar results.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

JESSE JONES, commerce secretary (also federal loan administrator and export-import bank director), is the hardest high official in Washington just now to extract an interview from.

To be sure, President Roosevelt has said he wasn't referring to Jesse especially when he described such remarks as that "we're nearly in the war" as mere "mouthing of words that don't mean anything." Nevertheless, Jesse was the last individual who had just mouthed them, as a witness before the house of representatives' banking committee, before F. D. R. expressed himself on the subject.

Washington's popular verdict is that, while maybe he didn't refer to his commerce secretary ESPECIALLY, he certainly must have intended to include him.

Plenty of isolationist representatives and senators made remarks substantially the same as Jesse's, in the course of congressional debate relative to the lend-lease plan. They undoubtedly were prepared to be presidentially characterized as mere "meaningless mouthing." It struck listeners-in, however, as rather a different thing to have the chief executive designate one of his own cabinet members.

As applied to the isolationist lawmakers, it was an observation which the capital was inclined to interpret as simply an answer to their anti-administrationist utterances.

REBUKE FROM THE BOSS?

In Jesse's case it sounded to most hearers like a rebuke from the boss to an indiscreet subordinate—and a damned scorching one. Jesse evidently knew he'd committed something awful the minute he'd said what he did to the banking committee, for he hastily told the committee's stenographer to omit it from his notes, so it didn't go into the official record.

Seemingly, it didn't occur to him, though, to warn newspaper reporters at the hearing not to quote him. Or, perhaps, as a newspaper publisher himself, he realized that they'd quote him, anyway. They did, too, and their editors played his testimony up prominently.

Jesse attempted no comment following his spanking—for a spanking is what everybody thinks it was, even if the president did explain that the spans were not aimed at his stern ESPECIALLY. Indeed, there wasn't much comment he could have indulged in profitably.

He simply has closed up tighter than a clam, which is unfortunate from a reportorial standpoint, for hitherto he's been a first-rate news source, and, probably due to his personal journalistic connection, an unusually intelligent one.

Washington's correspondents would like to know now what F. D. R.'s opinion of a talk Mrs.

F. D. R. made a few days ago before Hunter College's alumnae, faculty and students.

The first lady's address hasn't been published—not in the capital's press, at any rate.

FIRST LADY'S VIEW

However, it has appeared in print that, answering questions from her collegiate audience, she stated that, while opposing war, there are "some things worth dying for."

That, of course, wasn't the same thing as saying that "we're nearly IN the war," as Jesse Jones put it.

Still, query the correspondents, didn't it verge on it? Nobody has had the nerve to put this question up to the White House directly; it would be pretty sassy. But there's a lot of wondering about it.

What Mrs. Roosevelt said appeared in the same issues of the same newspapers a story of President Roosevelt's jab at "meaningless mouthings." It's natural that there's considerable paralleling of the two yarns.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was OPPOSED to war. Well, Jesse Jones didn't say he was in favor of it. All he said was that "we're nearly IN it." Neither did he say that there are "some things worth dying for." That was stronger than anything he said.

But Jesse got spanked. There's no news that Mrs. F. D. R. was even reprimanded.

"I think this will be enough," Eve said presently. Bill straightened up and looked at her.

Standing there with a great armful of rich green ferns, the color of which contrasted so strikingly with her tawny hair, she made an unforgettable picture. For the moment Bill Latham wished that he were a painter instead of a writer. Soft yellow dress, red-gold hair, the green of the ferns—and over all the mottled pattern of sunlight pushing through the thick branches of the many overhanging trees.

"Well?" Eve said. "I was just thinking," said Bill, his voice husky with emotion, "that you're the most beautiful girl I have ever seen!"

"Thank you," said Eve. She walked to the car, Bill behind her. "Let's pile the ferns in the rear seat."

Eve looked at her watch. "Heavens!" she exclaimed. "I didn't know it was that late!" She got into the car and took hold of the wheel. "We'll have to hurry, Bill. If we call on Larsee and get to the schoolhouse on time!"

"I wish," said Bill, as he sat down beside her, "that we could just stay here in this quiet spot."

Eve smiled at him. "It sounds delightful," she said. "But don't forget I'm to be mistress of ceremonies at the Saturday afternoon entertainment."

Once more they moved off—out of the cool dimness and into the summer sunshine. . . .

A drive of half an hour or so brought Eve and Bill to the small, barren yard that skirted the mountain cabin wherein lived Larsee and her many children.

Jed was standing in the open doorway of the cabin, and saw them.

"Maw! Maw!" he yelled excitedly. "Here comes Miss Eve and a man."

"Shut up, you, Jed Proudy!" Larsee yelled back from somewhere in the interior of the house. "Actin' like you ain't never seen nobody afo'!"

Eve and Bill got out of the car and went through a gate that hung limply by one hinge. "Hello, Jed!" Eve greeted, and introduced Bill. Then seeing how dressed up the boy was, she said: "You look marvelous!"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Jed. "I'm all set fur to do my recitin'."

"What are you going to recite, Jed?" Bill asked. "The Ghost of Mountain Meadows," Jed replied. "It's a poem what all us mountain folks has been er-hearin' fur a long time."

"And a poem you'll enjoy," Eve told Bill. "You stay out here with Jed until I see if Larsee can have gentlemen callers."

She went into the cabin, and Jed and Bill stood looking at each other. They were both ill at ease.

"Wanna see my pig?" Jed asked. "Sure!" said Bill, relieved that the awkward silence had been shattered. "I'd like to."

Jed led him around the cabin, and down a path. As they walked along they were joined by several children of various sizes and ages. "These here is my brothers and sisters," said Jed. "But ain't no use makin' you acquainted with them—hid'd take too long."

members attend the group meeting at Hedges Chapel March 26. All circle leaders and officers are especially invited to this first group meeting, as many topics vital to the welfare of the society will be discussed.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer was program leader for the day, discussing medical missionary work in India, China, Korea and Africa. She stated that the general plan was the same for each country. A mobile dispensary goes to the villages and rural centers, where treatment is given to the sick. Hospitals are maintained in a few crowded cities but many more people are helped, through the traveling unit. This is especially desirable for war torn China, as few hospitals have been left intact and what hospital facilities are available have been taken over for military use. In conclusion Mrs. Reichelderfer reported that medical missionaries are welcomed in all countries, as there are vast areas with very few trained doctors and nurses.

Mrs. Charles Stofor had charge of the devotional service, her theme being the individual responsibility for the Christian program.

Mrs. Edwin Bach and Mrs. W. L. Sprouse furnished the musical numbers for the program with Mrs. Malcolm Parrett playing the piano accompaniment.

Circle 6 was in charge of the noon luncheon which was largely attended, more than 80 being served. The circle members also conducted a successful apron and cookie sale during the lunch hour. Mrs. Stanley Glick is chairman of the circle, Mrs. Earl Kibler serving as co-chairman.

members attend the group meeting at Hedges Chapel March 26. All circle leaders and officers are especially invited to this first group meeting, as many topics vital to the welfare of the society will be discussed.

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer was program leader for the day, discussing medical missionary work in India, China, Korea and Africa. She stated that the general plan was the same for each country. A mobile dispensary goes to the villages and rural centers, where treatment is given to the sick. Hospitals are maintained in a few crowded cities but many more people are helped, through the traveling unit. This is especially desirable for war torn China, as few hospitals have been left intact and what hospital facilities are available have been taken over for military use. In conclusion Mrs. Reichelderfer reported that medical missionaries are welcomed in all countries, as there are vast areas with very few trained doctors and nurses.

Mrs. Charles Stofor had charge of the devotional service, her theme being the individual responsibility for the Christian program.

Mrs. Edwin Bach and Mrs. W. L. Sprouse furnished the musical numbers for the program with Mrs. Malcolm Parrett playing the piano accompaniment.

Circle 6 was in charge of the noon luncheon which was largely attended, more than 80 being served. The circle members also conducted a successful apron and cookie sale during the lunch hour.

Mrs. Stanley Glick is chairman of the circle. Mrs. Earl Kibler serving as co-chairman.

A business session followed during which officers were elected for the coming year and delegates and alternates to the annual Southeast Ohio Missionary Convention to be in Newark at the First United Brethren Church April 23-25.

A prayer poem read by Mrs. Mary Millions concluded the business hour.

Mrs. Ralph Long presented the program on the subject, "Enlarging Horizons Through Personal Service." "This is My Father's World" was played softly at the piano by Miss Nelle Denman, followed by group singing of the hymn.

A paper, "World Service In Which We Have Shared", a resume of missionary work done in foreign fields, was read by Mrs. Trimmer.

A trio, Mrs. Will Hegele, Mrs. A. H. Morris and Mrs. A. N. Gruesser, sang "Send the Light." A reading, "He Is Faithful", was presented by Mrs. E. S. Neuding.

WONDER RECORD ACCREDITED TO 'TROTTER QUINT

No basketball team in history can match the wonder record of the Harlem Globetrotters, world's champions, who meet the C.A.C. Saturday night on the local court.

That's not an idle boast on the part of the champions, but a statement substantiated by fact. The Globetrotters climaxed 13 years of unequalled feats by winning the world's championship in Chicago last March. The exploits of the dusky cage wizards have won them recognition in the nation's outstanding magazines and also in the "oddy" cartoons, so amazing is their record, ball-handling and all-around play.

It's a team that has everything—and always has had. Up until this season, their thirteen-year record shows 1,868 victories and only 131 defeats.

During the season of 1934-35, the Globetrotters established one record when they played 99 games on 94 consecutive days. They finished that season with 154 victories and only two setbacks.

Last season they traveled more than 35,000 miles, playing before over 500,000 spectators and winning 158 or 161 games played from western Pennsylvania to Vancouver Island, British Columbia. Everywhere they played people had a hunch this was the best team in the game, and that was confirmed late last season when they swept through the world's tournament against the finest field of quintets in the nation.

PHIL RIZZUTO READY TO ENLIST; CROSETTI PLAYS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7.—Phil Rizzuto, Yankee rookie shortstop, today received notice that he may be inducted into the army in the near future. "If the draft board passes me, I'll volunteer because in that way I can serve my year's time without breaking into two baseball seasons."

With the word that Rizzuto, a certain starter for 1941, may be out, Manager Joe McCarthy today considered Frank Crosetti, veteran shortstop, for the berth.

MIAMISBURG'S FINE MARK HIT BY BELLEFONTAINE

DAYTON, March 7 — Miamisburg's hitherto unbeaten Class A basketball team was out of the running for state honors today after being the victims of a stunning upset by Bellefontaine in the district tourney at Dayton.

The Bellefontaine boys edged the unbeaten Miamisburg team, 27 to 26. The Miamisburg quintet had chalked up a string of 20 straight victories.

FAST TRACK MAY FAVOR SAN JUAN $50,000 CONTEST

SANTA ANITA, Cal., March 7 —With a fast track seemingly assured for tomorrow's racing, the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap today became a wide open tussle, with the prospect that 17 or more thoroughbreds will go to the post.

Only three of the 22 nominees have definitely been declared out of the mile and one-half special, these being Challenged. Beautiful II and Don Juan II. Most doubtful of the other starters are General Manager and Explored.

Charles S. Howard's Midland will be a strong favorite, of course, assuming that he accepts his impost of 130 pounds. But nobody with a horse in the race seems to be afraid of him, rival owners being cheered by the fast track, along with Bay View's proof that Midland is not the great horse some observers believed him to be.

It has been definitely announced that Midland will start, but it doesn't seem likely Howard will pass up a shot at the $50,000 pot. Midland has been raced and trained hard all winter, and it may be that staleness caused him to falter in the stretch after racing up to Bay View in the Santa Anita handicap. At any rate, Tom Smith has not given him anything more strenuous than an easy gallop all week.

Bay View will definitely try for a repeater at the longer distance, picking up five pounds and carrying 113 tomorrow.

DiMaggio, Lombardi End Their Salary Holdouts

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—Joe DiMaggio, having ended his annual game of boost-the-ante, hauled out the family luggage today and with his beautiful wife, the former actress Dorothy Arnold, started for the New York Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

At the same time big Ernie Lombardi, ace catcher for the champion Cincinnati Reds, was likewise Florida bound after ending his holdout.

He was presumed to have settled with Manager Warren Giles for $18,000, plus a bonus if his hitting averages .300 or better for the season. Ernie had been asking some $20,000 for his services this year.

The most famous of baseball's three DiMaggio brothers, it was understood, had demanded $40,000 for 1941. He received $32,500 last year and contended that he deserved a $7,500 raise on the basis of his achievement as No. 1 slugger in the American League during the last two years.

However, in a long-distance telephone conversation yesterday with Yankee President Edward G. Barron, DiMaggio agreed to play ball for a reported $35,000, apparently realizing that his face at the door of Joe DiMaggio's North Beach grotto, even during summer tourist season, wouldn't draw that amount in added trade.

Breaking more than two weeks of silence, Joe said:

"I am completely satisfied. I am very glad everything worked out so well. I am sure anxious to get going."

While admitting his salary was boosted for 1941, he withheld the exact amount.

BILL CONN PUTS KAYO SMACK ON DANNY HASSETT

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Bill Conn today looked forward to his forthcoming battle with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis after disposing of Danny Hassett, of Philadelphia, by a fifth round knockout last night.

While the battle was billed as a tune up for his June fight with Louis, Conn didn't get much of a workout from Hassett. A crowd of 8,000, the largest indoor attendance for Washington, watched Conn toy with Hassett for four rounds and then drop his with a stiff left hook in the fifth for the count. Hassett bled profusely from his nose and a deep gash on his face that took five stitches.

Conn weighed in at 181 pounds for the fight, the heaviest he has weighed since abandoning his light-heavyweight crown to become a contender for the title held by the Brown Bomber. Hassett tipped the scales at 204 pounds.

NEWARK QUINTET RUNS UP SCORE ON CIRCLEVILLE

Total Of 70 Talled For New Tourney Record Against Red, Black

FINE BALANCE DOES IT

Amanda Goes On, Thumping Raymond Outfit In Class B, 62-42

A beautifully balanced Newark cage quintet, that didn't try a long shot, but that made a great percentage of its close-up attempts ran up a new Central Ohio District tournament record of 70 points Thursday evening on the Circleville Tigers. The game was played at Delaware, and Circleville scored 27 points. The Tigers led once, 4-2, just after the game started, if that is any consolation for the gigantic score.

It can't be said that Coach Red Orr poured it on the Circleville team, because he used all 10 of his athletes, but one combination was as good as the other, and there wasn't anything the Tigers could do about it. The balance of the Newark team is shown in the fact that although 70 points were scored no Newark athlete hit the hoop for more than 10 points. Three were able to reach this mark, another getting nine, another eight, one seven, two of them hitting for four, and then tenth getting a goal, his shot putting the total to 70.

Newark combined size, speed and ball handling to run up its score, big Bill Craig controlling both ends of the court. The Tigers on the other hand were getting the ball once in a while and then immediately losing it with a shot from the middle section of the court.

Newark led 18-7 at the quarter, 31-16 at the half and 52-22 at the end of the third session.

In the district Class B tourney being conducted at Westerville, Amanda's Black Aces carried on with a 62-42 victory over Raymond, Wayne Hiatt counting 26 points on 11 buckets and four free tosses.

Ashville plays tonight, being scheduled against a favored Marysville team at 6 o'clock.

The March 18 quota will be filled by 17 draftees and one volunteer, officials at Selective Service headquarters said Friday. The call will be the second largest yet drawn from the county, 34 having gone in the February 6 call.

Names Listed

The call on March 18 will include Samuel Charles Morgan, Williamsport, a volunteer; and draftees, Samuel Leroy Petheroff, Williamsport, Kemper Meadows, Orient; Dennis Melvin Creamer, Orient; Arthur James Lemaster, Circleville, Route 3; Clyde Edward Waits, Columbus; William Horace Niles Jr., Circleville; Everett Welsh, Orient; Cecil Beavers, Commercial Point; George Marion Peters, Ashville; Harold Raymond Stage, Derby; Floyd Ralph Blue, Ashville; Paul Robert Whiteside, Williamsport; Forney Elmer Harper, Ashville; George Castello Clements, Circleville; George Betts Jr., Circleville, Route 2; Frank Gardner Moore, Circleville and Wayne Austin Wilson, Circleville.

State headquarters already has asked for 44 men from Pickaway County to fill its March quota, with an unofficial call for one colored youth on March 20 and an official call for 13 men on March 27.

One hundred more questionnaires were mailed out by the local board Thursday, pushing the total number having been sent to registrants through 1,530.

In Jeopardy

MADMOISELLE Eve Currie, above, authoress and daughter of the late great Pierre and Marie Curie, scientists and co-discoverers of radium, may lose her French citizenship under a new decree by the Vichy government which takes away the nationality of all those French non-confirming citizens residing abroad. Mme. Currie is now in New York.

N. & W. ORDERS 15 NEW COACHES FOR MAIN LINES

Fifteen new streamlined passenger coaches have been ordered by the Norfolk and Western Railway, it was announced Friday at the Company's general offices in Roanoke, Va.

The cars are being purchased as a part of the N. & W.'s 1941 improvement program, and in order to assure adequate equipment to handle a sizeable increase in passenger traffic.

The streamliners, which will be constructed by the Pullman Standard Car & Manufacturing Company, are expected to be delivered during the month of September. The cars will be operated in the railway's crack trains, the Pocahontas and the Cavalier, between Norfolk, Va., and Cincinnati.

They will be constructed of high-tensile low-alloy steel, developed by metallurgists to increase strength and reduce weight. The couple length of the cars will be 85 feet long, and have a seating capacity of 60 persons.

Mounted on four-wheel trucks, with roller bearings, stabilizers and shock absorbers, the equipment is especially designed to give the utmost riding comfort.

Brake cylinders, instead of being attached to the bodies of cars as in the past, will be placed on the truck frames, thereby reducing noise to a minimum.

The cars will be equipped with modern, rotating, reclining, individual chairs, with body-conforming sponge rubber-molded cushions, covered with attractively colored upholstery. A fluorescent light with independent switch will be placed over each chair, which can be turned off or on as the passenger may desire. Fluorescent lights also will be placed in the ceiling along the center of the car. The interiors will be done in modern color scheme.
